The Rengo Group aims to be a corporate group equipped with comprehensive capabilities to meet every packaging need as a General Packaging Industry (GPI). Since our founding in 1909, we have continuously transformed and taken on challenges in response to changes in the times and society. Under our new medium-term vision, Vision120, we are now moving forward toward further growth, strengthening the foundation for value creation through packaging as we approach our 120th anniversary.

One of the major strengths of the Rengo Group lies in our integrated system, which covers every process from material development to product design, manufacturing, and logistics. Moreover, our competitive edge comes from our ability to offer optimal solutions for various issues within our customers' value chains by combining diverse solutions such as corrugated packaging, folding cartons, flexible packaging, and heavy duty packaging. Packaging is not merely something that "wraps" a product; it is an essential element that enhances product value, reduces environmental impact, and optimizes logistics.

The Rengo Group upholds "Less is more." as a key concept for both packaging creation and environmental management. Through this principle, we strive to make effective use of limited resources and pursue the creation of high-quality, high value-added products while reducing environmental impact and contributing to the realization of a sustainable society. Currently, paper material recycling has already reached a high level, and we are now working to establish circular models in fields such as film packaging, further advancing value creation under "Less is more."

As a company that values people, we place a human-capital approach at the core of our management. We believe that respecting the diverse individuality of every employee and creating an organization where people find purpose and fulfillment in their work lead to sustainable value creation and the true competitiveness of our company.

While the domestic market is reaching its limits in terms of quantitative growth, there are significant opportunities emerging in global markets. The Rengo Group is expanding into growth markets such as Asia, Europe, and particularly India, and we aim to further increase the ratio of overseas sales toward 2030. By extending the value cultivated in Japan to the world, we will embody our commitment to "Creating the future through packaging" on a global scale.

Together with all our stakeholders, we will continue to take on the challenge of creating new value. We appreciate your continued support of the Rengo Group and confidence in us.
